About the Book

In My Soul's Journey: collected poems by W.C. Aldridge, the author uses snapshots of childhood and a keen sense of faith to weave her experiences and memories through her poetry. With her soul lighting the way, she embarks on a journey both unique and universal, reflecting on family, culture, hurt and healing. The book is sprinkled with photographs by Michele Lee, and includes the iconic image “5th Grade Substitute” by Annie Lee, a detail of which graces the cover.

My Soul's Journey made its way to press through the pandemic lock-down of 2020-21 via emails and phone calls between the author and publisher Zelda Gatuskin of Amador Publishers, LLC, based in Albuquerque, New Mexico. It was released earlier this fall while many bookstores were closed and social gatherings curtailed. Although virtual events don't make up for missed hugs and handshakes, or for getting a personal inscription from the artist, they do have the benefit of reaching a wider audience. Ms. Aldridge and Ms. Lee look forward to sharing their work with the public via Zoom on December 11.
